Jeremy W. Cohen

Corporate law attorney Jeremy W. Cohen has joined Solomon Ward Seidenwurm & Smith LLP as senior counsel.

A seasoned attorney with more than 15 years of experience, Cohen assists entrepreneurs and businesses in all phases of their life cycle. He provides expertise in a wide array of business challenges, including entity formation, contract negotiations, intellectual property protection, financing strategies and corporate exits.

Cohen also has a depth of experience in mergers and acquisitions, offering guidance on transactions involving startups and enterprises valued as little as one million dollars to over $100 million.

“We’re thrilled to welcome Jeremy to Solomon Ward,” said Tanya Schierling, Solomon Ward’s managing partner. “His wealth of knowledge across various areas of corporate law adds significant depth to our already robust business law practice and underscores our firm’s commitment to providing exceptional legal counsel in the business sector.”

Prior to joining Solomon Ward, Cohen was a corporate attorney at Gesmer Updegrove LLP in Boston.

He received his law degree from Northeastern University School of Law, where he was the managing editor of the Northeastern University Law Journal, and his bachelor’s degree in chemistry from Harvard University.
